On court today...

- For the 2nd straight year, Novak Djokovic faces an Italian opponent in a Wimbledon semifinal, with Lorenzo Musetti bidding to become the 3rd Italian player to defeat Djokovic at a Grand Slam, after Jannik Sinner and Marco Cecchinato. Djokovic will hope that today's clash ends similarly to his semifinal here last year – he defeated Sinner in straight sets to remain unbeaten in Wimbledon semifinal matches since 2012, when he fell to Roger Federer in the last 4. For Musetti, a victory today would see him become just the 2nd Italian man in history to reach a Wimbledon final, after Matteo Berrettini in 2021.
- Carlos Alcaraz and Daniil Medvedev are facing off in a Wimbledon semifinal for the 2nd year in a row, with Alcaraz having defeated Medvedev in straight sets in the last 4 here last year en route to his first Wimbledon title. This will be the pair's 3rd meeting in a Grand Slam semifinal overall – after Medvedev won when the pair contested a semifinal clash at the US Open last year. A win for Alcaraz today will see him equal Manuel Santana's mark of 4 Grand Slam final appearances, with only Rafael Nadal ahead of him on the all-time list for most Grand Slam final appearances by a Spanish man. Medvedev, meanwhile, is aiming to reach his 7th Grand Slam final and become the 44th player in the Open Era to reach the Wimbledon men's singles final.
- If Alcaraz and Djokovic both reach the final here for the 2nd straight year, they will become the 9th pair of players in the Open Era to contest multiple Wimbledon men's singles finals. It will also be the first time that the same pair of players have contested the men's singles final here in back-to-back years since 2014-15.
